

2017 nomination period now open

The Godolphin Stud and Stable Staff Awards, set up to recognise and reward the hard work of British Horseracing's stud and stable staff employees, are now in their 13th year. The awards are run by the British Horseracing Authority, generously sponsored by Godolphin and in association with the Racing Post.

There is more than £120,000 in prize money offered by Godolphin and the winners and runners-up will be revealed during an evening awards ceremony held on Monday 20 February 2017 at the Jumeirah Carlton Tower Hotel in London. This year the nomination period will open earlier to encourage an even higher number of nominations from yards and studs.

Ten things you should know about the awards:

1. Anyone can nominate; so colleagues, owners, trainers, breeders, yard managers are welcome to nominate staff or colleagues for the awards.
2. All those who get nominated will automatically receive a certificate to recognise that being nominated is a huge achievement in itself.
3. Nominations for the 2017 awards will include the achievements of employees during the period from the 2015 Cheltenham Open Meeting to the 2016 Cheltenham Open Meeting.
4. There are six categories: David Nicholson Newcomer Award; Rider/Groom Award; Leadership Award; Stud Staff Award; Dedication to Racing Award; Rory MacDonald Community Award.
5. Last year the Rory MacDonald Community Award was launched in conjunction with Racing Welfare. It is for those unsung community heroes who work tirelessly behind the scenes for the good of our industry, whether it be supporting its equine or human participants during or after their careers.
6. There is more than £120,000 in prize money on offer, with up to £40,000 for an individual yard or stud. There is prize money to third place, winners and two runners-up for each of the six categories. The prize money that the winners and runners-up receive is match-funded and the same amount goes to their yard or stud.
7. There is a twelve-strong judging panel, geographically spread across Britain, bringing varied skill sets and experience when judging the nominations.
8. You can re-nominate employees/colleagues that have been previously nominated. If they were finalists they can also be nominated but for an alternative category (except for winners of the Employee of the Year).
9. The winners and finalists come from a cross-section of small and large flat and NH yards together with small and large stud farms. The 2015 Employee of the Year was Jessica Fortt from Dunraven Stud in Wales, the Employee of the Year 2016 was Gemma Hogg from Micky Hammond's yard in the Midlands.
10. Nominations open early this year from Wednesday 6 July to the Wednesday 16 November 2016. Applications can be downloaded or made online at: www.britishhorseracing.com/awards

Guidance for Nominators

Each category has specific criteria that the judges will be looking for so please refer to “the qualities and examples” relating to the respective award categories.

2.

Please provide specific examples to back up your assertions.

3.

Set the context, and when nominating someone, please explain why they are deserving of the respective award, based on an act/event/achievement specifically relating to 2016 (between November 2015 and November 2016).

4.

Include examples of the three core qualities (Motivation, Going Above and Beyond and Horsemanship*) that cross over all the categories.

Examples of core qualities:

Motivation – X arrived at the yard age 17 with no qualifications. X is a highly motivated individual, she has never had a day off, always arrives on time, she always has a smile on her face and has a “can do” attitude. Early in her career she passed her NVQ levels 1, 2 and 3 and is now superbly qualified to pass on her knowledge and experience to the rest of the yard.

Going above and beyond – X not only fulfils her full-time role but is also extremely passionate about rehoming our retiring horses and works hard to make sure they go to the best possible homes when their racing careers are at an end. X’s recent efforts to strengthen links between my yard and the racing public have been concentrated on setting up and promoting our Racing Clubs, overhauling the website and ensuring that it is updated regularly to engage with potential owners.

Horsemanship* – X came to work with me after a bad injury ruined a promising apprentice career in the saddle and for many years she was the mainstay of the racing yard where we have trained countless winners primarily in the pointing field. Over the last few years, we decided that after overseeing a successful breeding operation that why not stand our own stallion? In reality there was only one person who would be responsible for this, namely X. Although the vast percentage of stallion handlers are well-built and strong, X is less than 5 feet tall and not your typical hand. However, her empathy with each stallion is a joy to see, she has such a natural way with them and her lack of physicality has never been an issue. In many ways she is self-taught, but she has gone away, looked at how different studs do different things, looked into the various methods of covering, facilities, routines etc and her work alongside the vets has enabled all the stallions to maintain high levels of fertility and first time coverings. She never stops wanting to learn or develop in order to make things better at the stud, for the good of everybody as a team.

Please note that horsemanship may or may not be relevant to the Rory MacDonald Community Award*
